

The next offering from the South Devon Players theatre company in Brixham, is a pantomime created in-house, as with most of our scripts - this time to produce a new, light family pantomime, based on medieval mythology, written and directed by Mrs Louise German
Telling the hilarious story of a cowardly hero, a gutsy princess, pitted against an evil dragon lord and his two rather incompetent dragons, this pantomime promises to be a light pantomime that can be enjoyed by people of all ages.

The South Devon Players theatre company are an award-winning, completely non-profit community/ amateur theatre company founded in 2005, based in Brixham and featured on BBC 1 national television in January 2013. We mainly specialise in shows about local history, but sometimes expand to wider historical events and legends (as in the case of this production) as well. We are family friendly, lively and welcoming to all who wish to be involved in theatre at any level. In the past, members have gone on to perform in major feature films, and train at RADA. Our membership ranges from age 10 to 65, and from professional performers to complete beginners, all of whom work as part of a team to create new exciting shows which are then brought to our local community.
